Greenwich Historical Society Offers History on Wheels

Cob Cob, CT, May 21, 2015--With Greenwich Cove as the backdrop, the Greenwich Historical Society will once again participate in Experience the Sound, a yearly celebration at Greenwich Point that showcases local organizations and educational institutions that care for and promote coastal marine life, nature, outdoor recreational pursuits, town history and the environment. This year's History on Wheels program will be linked to the celebration of Greenwich's 375th birthday and will focus on key events in the history of the Point, including initiatives by the Greenwich Point Conservancy to restore public buildings and native habitats.

Participants will meet at the first parking lot on the right after entering the park. The group will then cycle around the Point, stopping at various locations to hear stories, take a closer look at some of the ruins and see vintage photos from the Historical Society's collection. There will also be an activity with prizes for children.

Participants must bring their own bikes and helmets, and a water bottle is highly recommended.

Sunday, June 21, 2015, 1:30 to 2:15 pm

Greenwich Point, Tod's Driftway, Old Greenwich, CT 06870

The program is free, and no park pass is required.

Vintage postcard of Innis Arden (1908), home of J. Kennedy Tod, from the collection of the Greenwich Historical Society. The Town of Greenwich purchased the property from Presbyterian Hospital of New York in 1945 for $550,000. The 148-acre peninsula estate (including golf course) was built by Tod, and several of its outbuildings still stand.
