Historical Society Opens Summer Photography Exhibition

Cos Cob, CT, June 20, 2013--Greenwich: The Perspective of Time is a collaboration between the Greenwich Historical Society and the Stamford Photography Club. The show of juried images is the result of an invitation by the Greenwich Historical Society to members of the Photography Club to submit photographs that portray aspects of Greenwich history through the eye of the lens. The images will be on display at the Historical Society's Storehouse Gallery from July 17 through September 1, 2013.

The varied and fascinating images represent a visual commentary on the ever-changing face of the community--its structures, landscape and institutions--and how aspects of the town as they are today may not survive the next generation. Executive Director Debra Mecky, commenting on the concept, notes, "Since its invention, photography has been an invaluable medium for chronicling historical events. But photography can also raise the understanding of history to another level by evoking a sense of time and place on a more visceral level."

The Stamford Photography Club (originally the Stamford Camera Club, founded in 1945, and later called the Photography Club of Lower Fairfield County) provides a meeting ground for photographers of all levels. The organization regularly holds classes and conducts competitions in a variety of categories and offers support, advice and avenues for display to photographers.
